OBITUARY

CAROL ANN D'AMICO, wife of Michael, mother of Lisa O'Rourke and Michael D'Amico, passed away May 27. Arrangements were by Ripepi Funeral Home. Services were at St. Michael Church on June 1. Carol will be greatly missed by her many friends and neighbors in Brooklyn Heights.

LEONARD YOUNG, husband of Erna "Anna" for 49 years, father of Andrea and Heather, passed away February 8. A Memorial Mass was held at St. Leo Church on June 13. Lenny served proudly in the USMC and U.S. Army. He joined the Cleveland Fire Department in 1970 and retired as an officer in 2001. He also served on the Brooklyn Heights Fire Department for 13 years. Lenny will be greatly missed by his many friends and neighbors in Brooklyn Heights.

The Breeze extends sympathy to our bereaved families.

THANK YOU NOTE

Thank you to all our friends and neighbors for their kind thoughts and condolences on the recent loss of my wife, Carol D'Amico.

Mike D'Amico and family

Have a Safe and Happy Fourth of July
HIT THE BRAKES, NOT US!

With the start of construction season, please use caution and obey reduced speed limits, cones, signage and flaggers in construction work zones. If possible, move over a lane to give construction workers, police and emergency vehicles a wider berth.

Highway work zones are dangerous places for workers and drivers alike. The National Safety Council reports that more than 100 road construction workers are killed on the job each year. One of Dominion's contractors was injured this year by an impatient motorist who sped past a traffic flagger and struck the workers.

While we know it can be frustrating to deal with traffic delays, never let your emotions take the wheel. It's just not worth the risk or consequences of injuring yourself or others.

Reprinted from Dominion East Ohio.

Call Dennis Derbin at our Brooklyn Heights Police Department at 216-741-1327 with any questions.

BICYCLE SAFETY

1. Protect your head wear a helmet.
2. Stay visible if drivers can see you, they are less likely to hit you. Use lights when biking at night or low light conditions.
3. Look, signal & look again. Use hand signals to let drivers and other bicyclists know where you're going. Look and make eye contact. Don't assume drivers will stop.
5. Go with the flow. Bike in the direction of traffic.
6. Act like a car. Drivers are used to the patterns of other drivers. Don't weave in and out of traffic. The more predictably you ride, the safer you are. Check for traffic. Be aware of traffic around you.
7. Don't get distracted. Don't listen to music or talk on the phone while riding.
8. Obey all traffic laws & lights
10. Do a quick bicycle test. Check your brakes and your wheels. Make sure that "quick release" wheels are properly secured.

Call Dennis Derbin at our Brooklyn Heights Police Department at 216-741-1327 with any questions.

10 Ways to Help Avoid Financial Abuse for Seniors

Increased dependency due to illness, disability or cognitive impairments can make seniors susceptible to financial abuse. Nest eggs, accumulated over decades, also often make seniors attractive targets for predators, whether an offshore bogus sweepstakes or a care provider who sees an opportunity to be paid more than an hourly wage. If others are aware of your finances, either possible predators will see that no opportunity exists to take advantage of you, or your family members or professionals can step in to keep any fraud from going too far. Here are some steps to help prevent financial abuse for yourself or a loved one.

1. Arrange for account oversight—Arrange for someone close to you to have access to your accounts to be able to see if anything unusual is going on, for instance large checks being made out or larger-than-usual cash withdrawals from ATMs. The oversight can be through copies of monthly statements or online access to accounts.

2. Create joint accounts—A joint account with someone gives them oversight as well as the ability to write checks, make investment decisions and take steps if necessary to protect the funds in the account. This can also make the transition somewhat easier at the time of death.

3. Use a revocable trust—Speak with a legal advisor as to whether a trust is appropriate for your situation. They can include the benefits of joint accounts, with few of the drawbacks. Your revocable trust gives someone you trust access to your accounts in trust and the ability to step in seamlessly if you become disabled. Unlike a joint account, it does not give the trustee any ownership interest in the account.

4. Visit often—Nothing prevents financial abuse or stops it in its tracks better than frequent visits by loved ones. The potential perpetrator sees you are not isolated and may fear that your family members or friends will notice the abuse before it goes too far.

5. Get help paying bills—If someone helps you pay your bills, they will help you make sure that you’re not letting anything slip through the cracks or paying something that you shouldn’t. They will be able to help you sort through your mail and determine what is important and what is not.

6. Use a limited credit card—Credit cards are now available that allow another person to monitor the activity of the cardholder and to limit both the amount spent and where it can be spent.

7. Sign up for do not call registry—It is quite easy to register your telephone number with the Federal Trade Commission’s Do Not Call Registry either online at www.donotcall.gov or by calling 888.382.1222. While this may not stop someone intent on defrauding you, it should help reduce calls from salespeople.

8. Sign up for Nomorobo—You can sign up for Nomorobo to block robo calls. Unfortunately, it does not work with all telephone providers, including Verizon.

9. Consult with an elder law attorney or financial advisor—They can assist with financial management; advise on the best protective steps to take in each situation and provide additional oversight to discourage financial abuse.

10. Opt out of mail solicitations—At www.dmchoice.org the Direct Marketing Association permits you to limit the amount of catalogs, credit card offers and other direct mail pieces you or a loved one receives. You may well ask why the Direct Marketing Association does this. The answer is that they don’t want to waste their print and mail costs sending to consumers who have no interest in the product being marketed.

While there’s no foolproof measure to prevent financial fraud, these steps can make for a safer financial place. Seek professional legal/financial advice and engage a trusted person to help you with this process.
